

DAY BED

IDRÒMI

The collection ‚A vo sü, a vo giò‘ as presented at the Salone Internazionale del Mobile 2012 is based on the idea of orchestrating a confined space with a few pieces that meet essential human needs by means of their unassuming multi-purpose properties. The principal item of the collection is an amalgamation of a three-legged day bed, a partition and a bench. The horizontal panel is made of two opposing layers of solid red cedarwood slabs, supported by a single cylindrical leg. It forms a platform which carries a spring mattress covered in rough natural linen. Inserted into this floating board is a sheet of ground aluminium which functions as a divider, with a whimsical hole in the middle being the spatial connection between the three elements. On the back of the vertical panel, the extension of the wooden board works as a simple bench.
